Synopsis:

India and its composite culture are deeply related to Human values and Human Rights. Post 2nd world war and the follow up developments in the universal Declaration of Human Rights in 1948, provided fertile ground for imbibing canons of Human Rights in the Part-III of the constitution. Fundamental Rights portray the human liberty and equality enshrined in U,N charter. The ancestral Vedic and upanishadic values very akin to present day Human Rights get clouded by the changing socio-economic, political and cultural decline. Post-independent India is moving across the surface of cultural decline, the offshoot of Human Rights violation. All nefarious attempts of violation are to be prevented with stern enforcement measures. 42 students participated in the seminar.
